

Charleston Mercury

Page 14

CHARLESTON MERCURY

August 14, 2008

Out & About

PHOTOGRAPHS BY BLAIR HALFORD

CAROLINA PHOTOGRAPHS BY PAUL CHENEY

(Left) Some of those attending the Carolina Girl launch party of July 13 included Meredith Jarvis, Kelly Wood, Spencer Jarvis and Meredith Siemens; word has it that they have just started to sing a theme song from the '80s: "Come aboard, we're expecting you ..."

(Left) Rachel Martin and Cher Coburn make a glamorous photograph at a photographic exhibition at Imaging Arts located at 175 King Street.

(Below) Anne Forschler-Tarrasch, Chris Hammond and Ellen McGauley get acquainted at a reception for Mrs. Forschler-Tarrasch at Mary Helen McCoy Fine Antiques.

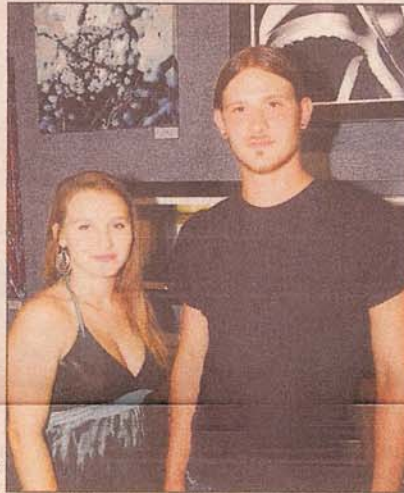

Steve Wenger and Captain Bob Murray smile on board the Carolina Girl, which is ready to be the destination for your next nautical event.

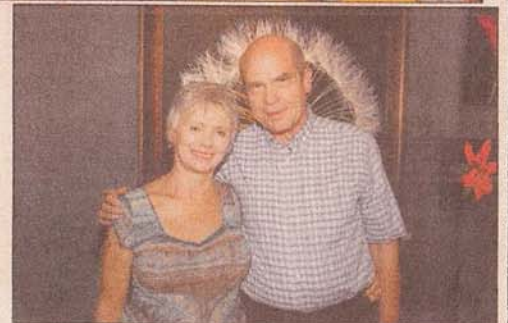

Shannon Odom, Hannah Alexander, Todd St. Onge and Dave Brown enjoy the hospitality on the Carolina Girl July 13.

Barbara Tapp, Mary Helen McCoy and Angela Mack pause from polite conversation for a photograph at Mary Helen McCoy Fine Antiques of King Street.

(Right) Megan Rock poses with Steven Hyatt at the display of his hand-manipulated Polaroids at the Imaging Arts Gallery on Thursday, July 31. Steven also handles custom printing, framing and photographic editing for all quality-minded photographers at Imaging Arts.

Dori and Walter LeCroy smile warmly at the finale of Walter's botanical collection of photographs on Thursday, July 31, at Imaging Arts located at 175 King Street. Mr. LeCroy raffled off two pieces from his botanical collection to benefit the Charleston Artists Guild.

(Right) Ron and Mary Helen McCoy welcome Anne Forschler-Tarrasch and Jurgen Tarrasch to Charleston with a reception held at Mary Helen McCoy Fine Antiques at 120 King Street. Anne Forschler-Tarrasch is the curator of the decorative arts at the Birmingham Museum in Birmingham, Alabama.

Obviouslee MARKETING

Client: Carolina Girl
Date: August 14, 2008
Publication: Charleston Mercury
Circulation: 18,000