

The Post and Courier

Winner of the Pulitzer Prize

TOP STORY

Charleston zoning board to try again to reconstruct unrecorded meeting

By Dave Munday dmunday@postandcourier.com Jan 14, 2018 Updated 12 hrs ago (0)

The 100-foot Carolina Girl is moving from the Ripley Light Marina on the Ashley River to St. John's Yacht Harbor on the Stono River. Provided

Switched at berth

The Carolina Girl, a Charleston-based yacht for weddings and other special events, is moving to a new home.

The 100-foot vessel has been operating out of the Ripley Light Yacht Club on the Ashley River for the last 10 years. It's moving to the St. Johns Yacht Club on the Stono River this week.

"The much shorter walk from the dock, handicapped access and ample parking will mean easier access for our guests and vendors," owner and captain Bob Murray said in an announcement.

The $5 million yacht got new rosewood teak flooring last year. The vessel can handle 150 guests on its three levels. The booking cost is between $5,000 and $12,000.